Rollo Homes

Twenty years of leading regional and national home building companies have taught Randy Rollo great lessons about pleasing homebuyers. After a decade of following his own dream to be an innovative builder of quality custom homes, the word that best describes Randy's feelings for this business is passion...passion for the details of making a home take shape, passion for the whole concept of providing a home designed for each individual family, and most importantly, passion for ensuring a homebuyer's satisfaction.

A builder must be able to see the finished product through the eyes of his clients, while making certain that the dream is realized within budget, timeline, and quality constraints. That requires passion.
